Understanding the AP Psychology Exam

The AP Psychology exam is designed to assess students' understanding of psychological concepts, theories, and applications. It is administered by the College Board and is typically taken by high school students at the end of their AP Psychology course. This exam not only tests students on their knowledge of psychology but also prepares them for future college-level courses. The insights gained from studying psychology can be invaluable, as they apply to various fields, from education to healthcare and beyond.

The exam is also a reflection of the curriculum outlined by the College Board, which emphasizes critical thinking and the application of psychological principles. As students prepare for the exam, they should familiarize themselves with the exam format and the specific topics covered to ensure they are well-equipped for the test day.

Exam Format and Duration

In 2025, the AP Psychology exam will maintain a similar format to previous years, consisting of two main sections: multiple-choice questions and free-response questions.

The total duration of the exam is approximately three hours, divided into two distinct parts, which allows students to showcase their knowledge and analytical skills effectively.

Section 1: Multiple-Choice Questions

The first section of the exam consists of 100 multiple-choice questions. This section is designed to test students on a wide range of topics covered throughout the AP Psychology curriculum. Students will have 70 minutes to complete this section. The questions will assess various aspects of psychology, including foundational concepts, research methods, and the application of psychological theories.

Section 2: Free-Response Questions

The second section comprises two free-response questions, which require students to write detailed responses that demonstrate their understanding of psychological concepts and their ability to apply these concepts to real-world scenarios. Students will have 50 minutes to complete this section. Each response will be evaluated based on clarity, depth of understanding, and the ability to connect psychological principles with practical examples.

Scoring and Grading

The AP Psychology exam is scored on a scale of 1 to 5, with 5 being the highest score. Each section of the exam contributes to the overall score, with the multiple-choice questions accounting for 66.6% of the total score and the free-response questions accounting for 33.3%.
